WHAT IS A SAND DUNE COUNTRY?

Sand dune countries are small Persian Gulf sheikdoms with scant population that in the 1960s and early 1970s issued far more stamps than postal necessity would dictate. The stamps were often large and colorful commemoratives with little relevance to the issuing country, but they were designed to have maximum appeal to topical collectors of popular themes. The stamps were sold to collectors and dealers mint or canceled-to-order (stamps canceled without doing postal duty and sold at a steep discount from face value).

The stamps were valid for postage in the sheikdoms where they were issued, but there were few people there to use them and fewer still who were likely to write letters, so very few genuine postally used examples exist.

The sand dune countries include Abu Dhabi, Ajman, Ajman-Manama, Dubai, Fujeira, Qatar, Ras Al Khaimah, Sharjah, Sharjah- Khor Fakkan, South Arabia-Mahra State, South Arabia-Kathiri State of Seiyun, South Arabia-Kathiri State in Hadhramaut, South Arabia-Qu'aiti State in Hadhramaut, South Arabia-Upper Yafa, Trucial States, Umm Al Qiwain, Yemen Arab Republic, Yemen People's Republic and Kingdom of Yemen.

While the Scott standard catalog lists some stamps of many of these entities, it does not list thousands of the stamps that were issued in the 1960s and early 1970s.

Most collectors who are interested in collecting this area use the Michel Gulf States Catalogue, which is conveniently published in English, although the catalog publisher is located in Germany.

It is Time To 'Talk Up' Philately

How often have you heard other collectors bemoan the Demise of stamp collecting, that clubs and shows are shrinking? Have you done the same? Are you part of the problem? What have you done to counter this false assumption? It is time for you to "talk up" philately — to actively promote the hobby.

The worst case of negativity I have ever heard about came a few years ago when an officer of one club was mailing some packages with interesting arrays of stamps. A woman he did not know behind him in line remarked that she collected stamps. He said, "That's nice," and left without further conversation — totally overlooking the fact that he had an opportunity to recruit a new member for his club.

'Talk Up'=Promote

Here are some ideas of what you can do to promote philately:

• Advertise and Publicize:

If potential members or buyers are unaware of your meeting, show, or bourse, they will be among the missing. Some Stamp Clubs produce a poster advertising their meetings.

• Attend and Join:

Attending shows and joining a stamp club are great ways to help your collection grow, make new friends, and keep the stamp community healthy. The alternatives are inactive clubs and shrinking shows.

• Donate:

Two charities that are a source of new philatelists are Stamp Camp USA and Stamps for the Wounded.

• Focus:

Be sure your club has a philatelic agenda that does not deteriorate into unrelated topics and bull sessions.

• Invite:

Make strangers aware that they are welcome at your club meetings. Be sure to introduce them to each of your members.

• Listen:

Unlike the club officer, offer information about your club and other resources if you meet someone who mentions an interest in stamp collecting.

• Mentor:

Scouting merit badge counselors are always needed. The Boy Scouts offer a Stamp Collecting badge; the Girl Scouts have three separate collecting badges.

• Share:

Gifts of stamp collecting items and your knowledge to noncollecting friends and family are wonderful incentives.

• Start a youth group:

Follow the example of several Federation clubs by initiating a club of youngsters at area schools or boys and girls clubs.

• Write:

Share your knowledge with others by contributing to both philatelic and nonphilatelic publications.

Remember:

Be a part of the solution, not the problem!

Stamps for Clunker Cars

Those who have ever listened to “Car Talk” on NPR are familiar with the “Tappet Brothers”, Tom and Ray Magliozzi. The surviving brother, Ray has the following suggestions for stamps after the Pickup Truck stamps were issued back in July. That got him to thinking, shouldn't there be a set of stamps for the vehicles that you and I actually had to drive? Cars on whose dashboards we pounded our fists in frustration.?

First on the list is the 2001 Pontiac Aztek. This is the nominee for “most hideous vehicle ever produced.”

Second nominee is the 1971 Chevy Vega. Described by one reviewer as a car with “slothful performance, woeful reliability... and the permanent falling-apart-at-the-seams appearance of an abandoned shack.”

Third, is the 1995 Ford Explorer. A vehicle with a high center of gravity and tires “prone to exploding at random”

Next is the 1960 Chevrolet Corvair: A name “synonymous with ‘automotive scandal’”, one that singlehandedly shook America’s faith in car companies.

Number five is the 1986 Audi 5000: A model that showed a “willingness to take off on its own, usually through the garage door.”

The next nominee is the 1988 Suzuki Samurai: a car that “looked like a third generation Xerox copy of the Jeep with the added ability to end up on its roof at any given moment”

And seventh, the 1971 Ford Pinto: This car “wasn't too bad. It only exploded when its rear bumper came into contact with other cars, leaves or a light breeze.”

Postal Service Is Sorry for Delivering Blood-Stained Mail

The US Postal Service has apologized to residents along an upstate New York mail route who received mail stained with blood, the AP reports. A Postal Service spokesperson for the agency's western New York district tells the Olean Times Herald that the blood was from a mail carrier whose finger was cut after a vehicle accident Tuesday. The official says the carrier's vehicle was sideswiped, damaging the side mirror. The worker cut his finger when he tried to adjust the mirror. The official says the carrier believed the bleeding had stopped and wasn't aware blood was smudging the mail he was dropping off along a delivery route near the city of Olean, 60 miles south of Buffalo.

Hidden in Mail Carrier's Dead Mom's House: Mail

A Kentucky mail carrier felt he was a little too busy to deliver all his mail and will spend six months in prison as a result, reports the Courier-Journal. Authorities found about 45,000 pieces of mail set aside by William "Brent" Morse. "He wanted to speed up his route," says a police captain in Dawson Springs. "I think he was lazy." Maybe, but it takes industriousness to be lazy on this scale: Police found the mail stashed inside his dead mother's house and at a rented storage facility. Morse must pay about $15,000 in restitution to those on his route who lost money because of his work ethic—that includes businesses whose advertising circulars went unread, notes the Justice Department. (Though at least he didn't throw the mail in the garbage, as a carrier on Long Island did.)
